

A WILD ASS LOOSE

Creed Haymond of the California delegation seems to have but one central idea at Chicago and that is to have California make all the noise at the Convention, and have himself recognized as the noisiest in the lot.

He reminds one of the Scriptural wild ass braying in the wilderness. California sent a delegation to the Convention in a special car, packed with champagne and California blarney.

All ready the evidence that the wine is being rapidly sampled has begun to make itself painfully manifest.

Creed Haymond has already assumed to speak for Nevada and California and in both instances he has misrepresented these States.

He has been howling for Blaine at the top of his lungs all the while and even after Blaine's son has called at his headquarters and begged him to desist.

Stewart and Jones have both advanced clean sober reasons why Blaine's name should not be presented until after it is shown to be impossible to unite on a candidate, but Haymond and the California delegation with the fumes of their wine in their heads and a morbid desire for notoriety continue to hawl for Blaine against the oft expressed wishes of Blaine's best friends.

If Haymond has any good friends about Chicago, they ought to cork him up at once.

ALGER'S FOLLOWING.

A Chicago dispatch has the following comforting news for the soldier friends of Alger:

It is quite generally believed that Alger now has a greater following than either Allison or Gresham, and his lieutenants are working night and day to swell the ranks. They are particularly busy and successful among the Grand Army men, the Alger headquarters being thronged at all hours with the wearers of the blue coats and bronze buttons. Here they find congenial surroundings, for the place is a bower of flowers and evergreens, interspersed with war relics calculated to arouse the enthusiasm of all old soldiers. Iowa's candidate, Allison, has equally gorgeous apartments, but seems to be getting the worst of the contest with the Michigander.

The Tariff and Quicksilver.

The Lake County Cal., Avalanche points out the necessity of preserving the tariff on quicksilver, which Mills has on his list. The Avalanche puts the case in a very direct manner:

With the present tariff our mines are able to work at a profit; should it be placed on the free list every mine in Lake county will be compelled to close down. They cannot compete with the cheap labor of Spain and Austria. For example, in Spain the cost of producing a flask of quicksilver is $7, while in Lake county the estimated cost is about $27. The present price of quicksilver is about $40, with a tariff of about $8 per flask. The foreign importer could sell now, making a profit of $25 per flask, less freight and charges, while our producers would have only a margin of about $5 per flask, less freight and charges. Now how easy for the foreign importer to work on a smaller profit and shut out our producers altogether. No; Lake county cannot afford to help men to office that are in favor of free trade. It will shut out too many of our industries.

The three men who murdered John Lowell, the El Dorado county (Cal.) rancher, and buried his remains in a cellar on the ranch, Henry Meyers, John Olison and William Drager, have been arrested. There is no question as to the guilt of all, but who originated the plot is a matter of mystery yet.

Mr. McGlashan has discovered a new species of butterfly found only in this vicinity and the Academy of Sciences has conferred an honor upon the discoverer by naming it M. McGlashanii.

The powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight adulterated powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 108 Wall St. N. Y. Jy30.1v
